The Donald P. Shiley School of Engineering at the University of Portland invites applications for a full-time, non-tenure-track, 9-month teaching position. The selected candidate will teach the equivalent of 24 semester-hours per year and advise mechanical engineering students. We expect to receive funding for a start date in August 2016.

The successful candidate is expected to primarily teach first-year and sophomore-level engineering mechanics courses such as statics, strengths of materials, dynamics, and introduction to engineering. Other likely courses include engineering probability and statistics, fluid mechanics, engineering economics, materials science, circuits, graphics, and various laboratories. We value experience with SolidWorks, Autodesk, and/or Matlab. We are also interested in faculty who want to collaborate across disciplines and are interested in ways to foster professional development, ethics, entrepreneurship, innovative pedagogy, etc., as part of the undergraduate experience.

This is an ideal position for someone who is passionate about teaching and wants to work at a student-centered institution where we are continuously enhancing the curricula. Faculty development and mentoring opportunities will be provided. At the Donald P. Shiley School of Engineering, we emphasize undergraduate education with an enrollment of approximately 750 across four majors: civil, mechanical, and electrical engineering, and computer science. Visit http://engineering.up.edu/ for more information about the Shiley School.

This position requires a minimum of a Master's degree in a relevant discipline with a Ph.D. preferred. Interested applicants should submit the following materials: a) Letter of interest discussing teaching philosophy, b) Curriculum vitae, and c) Contact information for at least three references. The priority deadline for submitting applications is December 15th though applications will continue to be accepted until the position is filled. Only electronic applications will be considered. A background investigation check is required before final hiring can be completed. The selected candidate must be legally authorized to work in the United States and not require sponsorship. Candidates may apply at https://up.hiretouch.com/job-details?jobid=29335.
